

IHR PARTNER FÜR
DIGITALE BILDUNG

Web Developer (f/m/d) wanted Feel the movement – be a part of it!

More and more companies use e-learning. From onboarding processes, compulsory and advanced training to product training for customers. We from b+r, wants YOU to be a part of it.

We are a Hamburg-based company and have been on the market since 1984. For more than 15 years we have been selling our own Learning Management Systems, which are constantly being developed. At the same time we design and create digital teaching and learning content.

Besides, we support our customers with analysis, consulting, didactics, conception, project management, graphic design, programming and provide standardized technical solutions for the e-learning sector.

We are looking for a Web Developer (f/m/d), who is interested in an autonomous, creative and innovative role, helping to provide our customers with a unique product experience.

Key Responsibilities:

- development of sophisticated web applications
- valuation of emerging technologies
- use of open source projects
- development and design new web-based solutions as part of a team
- analysis, conception, and realization of complex web applications
- development and support of projects focused on learning management systems and web based trainings

Profile:

- knowledge of PHP 5/7
- experience in front- and/or backend development
- profound knowledge of HTML, CSS
- excellent knowledge in German language and good English skills, both spoken and written
- passion for new technologies
- high motivation, creativity, and team spirit
- hands-on attitude

We offer:

- team atmosphere
- professional development
- very appreciative working atmosphere
- home office option
- a great team
- public-transportation card

Please feel free to inform us of anything else that might be relevant to you in an employment with us.

We are glad to meet you 😊

Please send your application documents with details of salary and earliest possible starting date to:
